Lingnan (University) College

Originating from Lingnan University, a private university established in the late 19th century, Lingnan (University) College was reestablished in 1989 within Sun Yat-sen University and is now one of the leading schools in economics and management in China.

Guided by Lingnan's motto "Education for Service", the College provides high quality education and research in economics, finance and management.

Lingnan offers a diversified portfolio of programs, including Undergraduate, Master's, MBA, EMBA, and PhD programs, together with international programs such as China Executive MBA, International MBA, and Master's in International Business. These programs, especially the Undergraduate and MBA programs, are of the most popular and selective programs in South China.

Lingnan has an outstanding faculty with 100 members and a student population of around 3,000. As a research-active college, Lingnan is tirelessly striving for excellence in teaching and research, advancement of knowledge, development of future leaders, and service to China and the global society.

Lingnan embraces a balance between liberal arts education and specialized education, with an emphasis on the development of students with well-rounded personalities, critical skills, citizenship and global vision.

Globalization is the trademark of Lingnan (University) College. The College is actively engaged in international collaborations and has established extensive global partnerships with leading global business schools through student exchanges, faculty exchanges, double degree programs, international summer schools, study abroad trips, joint research, and academic seminars. Currently, Lingnan has established exchange agreements with over 40 partner schools from 20 countries and regions in Europe, Asian-Pacific area and North America.

Lingnan is among the select few schools that have received all three international accreditations: AMBA, EQUIS and AACSB.
